

Waterland enjoy a successful day at the Peterborough Careers Fair.

Waterland Associates Architects are delighted to have been involved in the “World’s most exciting careers fair”, staged in Peterborough and organised by Peterborough skills service.

Thousands of students from Peterborough and the surrounding region came and explored hundreds of different stands exhibiting a wide range of career options. The representatives from Waterland Associates were able to give students valuable advice on possible careers in both architecture and the building industry generally.

Many of the students had a go at our Build a Newspaper Tower Competition. Waterland Associates representative Ben Garlick said

“A career in Architecture is immensely rewarding, but also challenging. Hopefully we were able to answer the students’ questions and encourage them along the way.”

Sue Addison from Peterborough Skills Service was delighted with how the event went, she said:

“We’ve received great feedback from schools, employers and young people alike. The event was intended to showcase the broad range of career options available to the young people of Peterborough, and it did just that. Our young people need to have the best possible information before they can make informed choices for their future, so we’re extremely grateful to everyone that played their part in making this event so successful.”
